A Playground for Future Generations

Regardless of ability, disability, size or age everyone plays together at the Memorial Park Playground!

The design of QuiNBy's Playground has many exciting features that will keep visitors coming back again and again! The focal point of the playground is a giant castle structure with a ramp located in the school-age (5-12 years old) play area. This feature showcases multiple slides, entry points, climbing nets, manipulative play, ground play and much more! The pre-school (2-5 years old) play area features a castle structure similar to the giant castle structure, but on a smaller scale. The goal of the features in the pre-school age area is to gradually develop the children's skills through age appropriate challenges allowing them to prepare for the school-age play area. The surfacing at the playground will be inclusive. The playground will utilize poured-in-place rubberized surfacing that is wheelchair accessible. The poured-in-place surfacing offers additional benefits of consistent shock absorbency, low maintenance costs, and ease of cleanliness procedures.

A Place Where Everyone Plays Together

The combination of feedback through surveys and constant interaction with residents via social media, it was decided to create an all-inclusive multigenerational playground that allows people of all ages and abilities an equal opportunity of play. This will provide children and young people of varying abilities different choices of recreation, as well as the opportunity to interact together, creating an atmosphere where diversity disappears, and community members can develop together in a positive way.
